

act was perpetrated simply because some little boys were hounding for Hancock. After the parade there was a good deal of fighting at some of the saloons. At Rothwell's one of the officers was called in to arrest a drunken member of one of the clubs; the arrest was resisted by some of his comrades, and for a time it appeared that a general row might occur, but the affair was finally quelled down. At a Middle street saloon a man was struck in the face with a brickbat which cut a fearful gash. He was taken to a surgeon and his wound dressed.

During the disturbance in East King street near Middle, Henry Leonard who was standing on the sidewalk in company with his wife was hit over the head with a torch, and Andrew Groff a baker who was quietly passing along the street was assaulted by men in the line, and severe beaten. It is said he was mistaken for a man who had thrown a stone. McMillen rode into the crowd and struck several persons with a cowhide. On the other hand it is charged that the person struck attempted to catch McMillen's horse by the bridle.

A boy named Keener was struck in the eye with a whip by one of the mounted men while passing through Centre square and his eye badly cut. Several other persons who crowded too closely to the horsemen were struck.

A rather attractive feature of the parade was the Watch Factory and the members of which wore lanterns of "red, white and blue" on the top of their caps.

Meeting in the Court House.

The "business men" and others of the faithful who did not feel like indulging in the parade met in the court house where they were addressed by R. Stockett Mathews. The chief of the parade was not there but was represented by the part of the audience. The windy orator spoke for two hours, flinging his expletives and epithets against the Democratic party with his usual vigor, but offering no better explanation of the parade than that it was a "brilliant" and "splendid" one, and that he could not have been guilty of so base a crime.

East Pennsylvania Episcopal—Remembrance, East Washington and the Lord's Supper.

The reunion meeting of the elders and laymen of the East Washington Episcopal took place in the Fourth street Methodist church, on Wednesday evening, and in addition to the regular attendance of the eldership, there was a very large presence of the members of the church, as well as many from other Christian demonstrations of the city.

Rev. Sigler announced the object of the meeting to be a reunion, a rejoicing over the progress and prosperity of the church of God at the end of its first half century of existence. He said that the church had been founded by a group of men and women who had borne the burdens and faced the embarrassment of a labor which might well meet together for rejoicing over the gathered fruits of their labor; to look into each other's faces and grasp hands devotedly for a continuance of their work.

Addresses were then made by Elders W. L. James and A. Swartz in support of the observance of the ordinance of feet washing. It was agreed that as it was incumbent to follow the Lord's commandment in this particular as it is to gather around the Lord's table, break bread and drink wine in commemoration of his broken body and spilled blood. The Lord had commanded all this to be done in remembrance of Him.

The ceremony was then proceeded with, the feet of the men being washed by men, and those of the women by women. The saints were arranged on both sides of the altar, and the ceremony was proceeded with amid great singing and rejoicing. Those who did the washing were girded with a large napkin, and carrying a large basin passed from saint to saint, kneeling, washing their feet, then clapping hands and exchanging the holy kiss. Elder Sigler during the ceremony washed the feet of a colored pastor, the act being one of the most impressive of the evening.

At the conclusion of the feet washing, Elder Sigler announced that the Lord's Supper would next be observed, and invited all Christians to partake of the bread and wine as an open one—free to all comers who were followers of the Lord Jesus.

Elder Lacey led the ceremony of the communion, briefly remarking upon its importance as a memorial of Christ's sacrifice and as one of his last acts before the crucifixion. Prayer followed, when the communicants came forward, the sisters on one side of the altar and the brethren on the other.

Elder Sigler served the elders who served the brethren, and at the conclusion of this service, called one of those at the table to dismiss the communicants with an exhortation and the usual blessing. These exhortations were usually in reference to the ordinance connected with the communion, and in the centennial, many of the addresses being touching and beautiful. Each set of communicants were served by different elders.

It may be mentioned in this connection that the ceremony of the Lord's Supper, as administered in the church of God, in the olden time, was by seating the communicants at a long table, on both sides, the bread and wine being served along from one to the other, by those who participated; the elder in the meantime, at the head of the table, reading to and leading the assembly in the singing of a hymn, and when all prayer followed, the benediction, and the congregation was dismissed.

The eldership met in devotional exercise yesterday morning, when the usual prayer and prayer were had, the attendance being of elders and laymen.

At nine o'clock the regular formal session of the eldership began, the first business in order being the election of a presiding elder.

Elder C. Price, of Shippensburg, was selected speaker for the ensuing year; Elder P. L. Nicodemus, of Newburg, transcribing clerk; Elder J. Halldahl, of Harrisburg, financial clerk; Elder Samuel Kniskern, of Carlisle, treasurer.

ing for the occupancy of the pulpits of the city on Sunday next was appointed. The committee for the reception of all business of the eldership was appointed.

On motion of Elder Forney, a committee was appointed to take into consideration all unoccupied houses of worship in the city. The committee consists of elders C. H. Forney, C. Price and George Sigler.

The Railroad Busy Yesterday—A Brakeman's Shocking Death—Borough Budget.

The Pennsylvania railroad depot at this place and the pavements encircling it, with the vacant space in front extending to the railroad tracks, were all crowded from six to seven o'clock last evening with political It is charged that the person struck attempted to catch McMillen's horse by the bridle.

Directly after it left the depot, the special train led by the engine, the Hancock and English battalions of this place on board, steamed out. Then the Port Deposit train, which was detained by the lateness of the Harrisburg accommodation train, cleared away.

The special train put out on to take the regular train, which was delayed, was filled in a jiffy, and it took pulled out at about 7:15, thirty minutes late. The Columbia accommodation train, due here at eight o'clock, also came in late.

The Vigilant and Shawnee fire companies arrived here by special train at a little before seven o'clock, having their engines with them. The companies were formed in front of the depot, and headed by their bands, marched to their engine houses.

Both bands—the Mountville and Ironville were engaged for the Republican procession at Lancaster, and they made the best time possible to get back to the depot sufficiently early to take the train to the county seat. Everything about the depot during all the time was in the utmost confusion. Pikes and horns were blowing, drums were beating, cylinders were clashing, men were singing, whistling and talking, and everything went on good humoredly. The scene was one which we have never seen equalled anywhere here, and it will probably be many a year before we shall see such a gathering.

John Mohr, a Pennsylvania railroad freight brakeman, while standing on the top of a "refrigerator" car, last evening, as his train passed under Seneca's bridge, east of Mountville, was struck on the head by a falling beam, and killed.

Mohr leaves a wife and six children, who reside at this place. At a late hour this morning the coroner's jury had not returned a verdict. Mohr was a carpenter by trade, and an excellent workman, his face being being still he took to railroading.

Miss Marie E. Purple returned to her home last evening from a visit of a couple of weeks to Oxford, Chester county, Pa. The Inter-urban circuit arrived this evening at 7 o'clock, and the church was filled with a large number of people.

Frederick Lindeker has torn out the partition dividing his store room and the room is now being fixed up.

The Hancock and English battalions of this place took to the road last evening for the purpose of attending the parade at Harrisburg. The Hancock Junior Irregulars arrived at an excellent time at Harrisburg, Md., during their short visit there.

The citizens' band of this place accompanied the battalion.

The members of both the Vigilant and Shawnee fire companies, who had an excellent time at Harrisburg, Md., during their short visit there.

The fair of the Frederick county, Md., agricultural society will commence on Wednesday next, and the fair will continue for several days.

THE TURF.
Yesterday afternoon the three races which had been advertised for some time came off at the park, with attendance very small and it was a great pity, as the races were all good.

The first race was for 250 class, and it was between the two horses, Elie Schultz and Mark Twain. Train won the race taking both heats in 2:20. Both of these horses were capable of making a great deal better time, but owing to the small crowd in attendance it was not thought worth while to push the animals.

In the 250 race Onaway, Silver Tail and Arthur won, Onaway taking three heats in 2:21, 2:20 and 2:21. Arthur was second. These horses could also have made much better time.

The last event of the day was the attempt of the trotting horse Joe Ripley to beat the best time ever made in this class, which was by Goldsmith Maid, who trotted a mile in 2:26. The horse beat that time easily, making the mile in 2:26. Owing to the sulky's being damaged the horse had to be driven the wrong way and he probably lost slightly by that.

Company C's Flag.
The presentation of a flag to Co. C, Hancock Veterans, did not take place at the Hancock Veterans' reunion, as stated yesterday, but at the residence of David H. Gardner, Major of the company, at Quarryville, where the flag was presented, and to which belongs the principal credit of the presentation.

Reed, Beach & Smith, druggists, of this city, say that DAY'S KIDNEY PILLS is giving the very best satisfaction. One of their customers writes that he has taken a box of the pills and he has the feeling that he has never felt before.

Why Is It?
The reason why Cohen & Bro. of the Philadelphia One Price Store, 5 East King street, don't advertise often is they don't have time. Because people are telling each other that they have so many bargains in the latest styles of men's and boys' hats, caps, gloves, shirts, underwear, knit jackets, &c., and that is why they are selling so many goods and kept busy.

H. Z. RHOADS & BRO.
Call attention to the completeness and variety of their stock, including every article of every description in their line, from the low-priced to the costly. All grades of Watches and Time-keepers. All classes of Jewelry, including very many pretty designs in cheap goods, and a superb collection of fine Diamond Goods. Silverware in full variety, from any good Electro-plated article to the Solid Silver Goods of great intrinsic value. Oil Paintings, Musical Boxes, Bronzes, &c., &c.

All purchasers of goods in our line, all persons contemplating the purchase of such goods, all admirers of beautiful goods, are respectfully invited to visit our store.
